I am sad to see that Microsoft competitors resort to political tricks to win what they lose on the market. Business competition should be resolved on the market not in court. I see absolutely nothing wrong with Microsoft business competitive tactics. People in Microsoft work like crazy and nobody in the world work as hard as they do. Let's not try to destroy the pride of an American business success. Otherwise, see what's happening to Auto industry.

We are losing the war on automotive. Aerospace, barely. Software is our last frontier and we are still maintaining the leadership status. We need the leader, the vision and more importantly, the pride.
